1. [redacted] In a chance meeting on the Hill, Dorothy Fosdick, Staff Director, Senate Subcommittee on National Security and International Operations, said Senator Jackson regreted that he was out of town and would not be able to hear the Director's briefing today, but wanted Miss Fosdick and Richard Perle, of the Subcommittee staff, to get a briefing on the Soviet ICBM that was mentioned in an article by Fred S. Hoffman in the Sunday Star of 7 January. After checking with Carl Duckett, I told Miss Fosdick that the information we have on this test to date is somewhat fragmentary and we would prefer to wait a day or two until we can sort out more data that is available. At that time we will get in touch with her and arrange for a briefing. She said this was fine.

2. [redacted] David Martin, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, called again about his request for information on prisoners who were incarcerated along with [redacted] I told Martin we had no information on [redacted] (and had so advised J. Sourwine) and had been unable to locate anything on the other name he had given us [redacted] Martin revised his request asking for any information we had on American officers who might have been kidnapped in Vienna during the post-World War II period. He also asked if we had any information on [redacted]

[redacted] He said his understanding was that there were [redacted]
